

Technical Bulletin – MICHELIN Pilot Sport Cup 2 R.

MICHELIN Pilot Sport Cup 2 R tyres are specifically designed for optimum dry track use.

They are available only in very limited dimensions and for specific cars.

Michelin Pilot Sport Cup 2 R is compliant with the necessary regulations for use on the road in the countries in which it is distributed.

However, owing to their specific design please note the following recommendations in order to optimize performance and driving safety.

- Do not use, roll, or drop Michelin Pilot Sport Cup 2 R tyres in temperatures below -10°C. If the tyres have been cooled to -10°C or less, let them warm up in a heated space to at least 5°C before fitting or moving a vehicle on which they are fitted. Do not apply heat or blow heated air directly on the tyres.
- When used on the road, Michelin Pilot Sport Cup 2 R tyres must be inflated according to the vehicle manufacturer's recommended pressures.
- When driving on track the Michelin Pilot Sport Cup 2 R tyre needs to warm up, so start slowly at the manufacturer's inflation pressures and build up speed over a few laps.
- After warming up, the inflation pressures can be adjusted (bled down) to the track use recommendation in the Michelin Informs document which can be found on the web site www.....Michelin
- Whilst on track, hot pressures should be between 2.3 bar and 2.7bar (33psi to 40psi). 2.5 bar (36psi) gives optimum performance.
- Never use a Michelin Pilot Sport Cup 2 R tyre at an inflation pressure below 2.0 bar (29psi).
- Optimum rubber running temperature on track is between 70°C to 100°C. 90°C is ideal.
- Wheel Camber can be adjusted to distribute load evenly across the tyre for track use. Michelin Pilot Sport Cup 2 R tyres work well between -1.5 degrees and -3 degrees, but should never be run with more than than -4 degrees of camber.
- Suspension geometry should always be returned within the manufactures specification for road use.

Michelin Pilot Sport Cup 2 R must only be used in sets of 4 and following the instructions in the Michelin Pilot Sport Cup 2R Documents and Customer letter which can be found on the Michelin web site <https://www.michelin.co.uk/auto/tyres/pilot-sport-cup-2-r>
