JACQUES MORELLI,

(WRC Programme Manager,
Michelin Motorsport)

"The Monte Carlo Rally is undoubtedly the toughest round of the World Rally Championship for the crews and tyre manufacturers because of the sheer variety of conditions you can face. You can come across dry and wet asphalt, frost, ice and snow all on a single stage. Tyre choices can give rise to long debates between Michelin's technicians, the teams' engineers and ice-note crews, weather advisors, etc. The WRC and WRC2 drivers have a choice of four different tyres: a soft and a super-soft asphalt tyre, plus a studded and non-studded snow tyre. This year we will have an evolution compound for our two WRC asphalt tyres."
