we bring asymmetric tires for both the front and rear

Phillip Island is a truly unusual circuit. It is very fast and flowing, with few heavy braking zones and long corners that place considerable demands on the tires. Its main characteristic is its asymmetry: the left-hand side of the tires works extremely hard, while the right-hand side is subjected to much less stress. This is why, as at the Sachsenring and Valencia, we bring asymmetric tires for both the front and rear.

The asphalt, which was renewed in 2024, provides a good level of grip, and we now have a solid base of reference data. We have therefore decided to bring exactly the same specifications as in 2025, with three front options and two rear options. They worked very well last year, and we are confident in their ability to meet the demands of this circuit.

"The other major unknown is the weather. At Phillip Island, we can encounter low temperatures, strong winds and rain, but also warmer conditions. Our allocation needs to be able to cope with all these situations. Finally, this is a circuit where racing is always extremely close, with small gaps between riders and plenty of overtaking. We are once again expecting a great show.
